Google Developer Groups on Campus

Netaji Subhas University of Technology

Devlympics – Shunya 2026

Mentoring Guidelines

The mentoring round serves as the official checkpoint to evaluate early progress and determine which teams qualify to stay for the overnight phase. Teams will showcase their concept, progress, and technical execution to the mentors for feedback and qualification scoring.

- Timing: 4 to 6 PM
- Time Per Team: 2 to 3 minutes total (strictly timed)

Because of the short presentation window, teams should be prepared to pitch efficiently without unnecessary setup delays.

The Core Pitch (2–3 Minutes)

- What specific “gap” are you bridging and why?
- What have you built to connect the two sides?
- A functional walkthrough of your current build.
- What will you complete during the overnight hackathon?

Demonstration Modes

- Live Prototype (Preferred): A hands-on walkthrough of your active build, showcasing the core user flow in action. You do not need to deploy your project.
- Slide Deck (Backup): If your build is incomplete or debugging, use a brief presentation with screenshots or recordings of your actual prototype. Purely conceptual mock ups are not allowed, you must demonstrate real work completed.

Evaluation Criteria

1. Theme Implementation: How effectively the project embodies the “Bridge the Gap” theme.
2. Creativity & Originality: The inventiveness of the approach and fresh perspective.
3. Execution: Code quality, design choices, and technical feasibility shown so far.
4. Functionality: Demonstrable technical progress and how much of the flow is operational.
5. Pitching: Concise and effective communication of the idea and architecture within the time limit.
6. Relevance & Impact: Does the solution solve a genuine friction point and offer tangible utility?

Instructions for Teams

- Have local servers, test accounts, and tabs running before mentors arrive.
- Clearly divide speaking and demo-driving tasks so you do not waste time passing laptops.
- Presentations are strictly capped at the 3-minute mark to ensure fair, equal evaluations for all teams.